

There are days when you feel small and helpless in the face of Goliath, a giant threat that is blocking your path. You feel surrounded on all sides by enormous and frightening dangers, which according to all logic and life experience, you would be definitely defeated.

When the truth is, that in every situation and in every moment, you can choose to move from loss to victory, to connect with the inner virtue of the Eternal and Victor within you. You can replace the ordinary points of view with the Eessential point - The connection with The Infinite in you. The same spark which King David connected to when he pulled out the sling shot.

Are you able to believe in yourself?

Check within, what is your capacity to utter hallelujah? Are you capable to give thanks for the good, and also for what you experience as less pleasant or desirable?

Try to connect to the inner Hallelujah, that is grateful unconditionally. Even for what you judge as not good, out of the understanding that it is also good, because no evil descends from above.

Feel the essence of Hallelujah in the situation you are in, and you will discover how miraculously Goliath disappears and your path is clear.
